

Slate Roofing Contractors Association of North America, Inc. Update, 2008

The SRCA, initially established in March of 2005, incorporated as a non-profit entity early this year. By-laws have been developed and are available for viewing on the organization's web site at slateroofers.org.

The Board of Directors has so far consisted of volunteers, including Liam Tower (Slate Affair, Inc., Enosburg Falls, VT), Chris Paulin (The Paulin Slate and Copper Co., Akron, Ohio), Barry Smith (Smith Slate Roof Restoration, Union City, PA), Joe Jenkins (Joseph Jenkins, Inc., Grove City, PA), James Warden (Milligan Construction, LLC, Providence, RI), John Mahan (Mahan Slate Roofing Company, Springfield, MA) and Robert Ruddy (Mountain State Slate Roofing, New Milton, WV).

Elections for Directors are to be held as this edition of TR goes to print. The above named Board volunteers are expected to be elected to formal posts in the organization at that time.

The purpose of the SRCA is to provide the public with access to reputable slate roofing professionals and to advance slate roofing trade skills, knowledge and practices. Keep updated about SRCA conferences and other activities at www.slateroofers.org.

HARDWARE MEN.

Add a Slate Roofing Department to your hardware business. It pays.

As you likely sell all kinds of building material, it will pay you to also do Slate Roofing for the reason that you will then come into contact with all builders and buildings, at a very early stage and you will therefore have the "inside track" when the hardware, glass, plumbing and furnaces for said buildings are bought, as the average builder prefers to confine his purchases to as few concerns as possible for the sake of convenience.

In other words: A Slate Roofing Department will be a valuable "feeder" to your hardware or main business.

You can do this with substantially no expense or trouble as only a few, simple, inexpensive tools are required, and any intelligent mechanic, with a little instruction, can soon lay slate fast and satisfactorily.

When you give customers first-class slate roofs, you give them the best possible quality value and you can therefore secure good prices.

As the most perfect roofing known, slate is coming into universal use.

HARDWARE MEN: This is an A-1, money-making proposition.

Look into it. Write to us at once.
